

Christian A. Gamo, Assistant Professor IV

The author is a faculty member of the Public Administration Department, Pangasinan State University-Bayambang Campus. He recently graduated as a Doctor in Public Administration at the Urdaneta City University. He teaches subjects in the BPA program like Politics and Administration, Governance and Development, Administrative Law, Public Fiscal Administration, Philippine Administrative Thought and Research in Public Administration. He has presented several researches both in the local, national and international for a and published some literary works and articles in refereed journals. Dr. Gamo has a simple grasp about poetical thoughts and reasoning making vesting to publish some of his literary pieces with EDUHEART and EDUFOCUS and ETCOR. He has been serving Pangasinan State University for fifteen years and counting. He has come up in writing module/s to further enhance the teaching environment and to catch up in the fast phase world of educational dynamics. This will not only benefit the students but as well as other stakeholders and the university as well.

The Lost Soul

A nobody tried to stood at the helm.
He has the grit and persistence to ponder.
Only to know, the puppets will wonder.
He begs for mercy. But the crowd is deaf.
He looked for other path; trying to escape from their wrath.

Dauntless in every step. Inducing himself to rewrite his own history. Though he was hurt and teared countlessly;
He manuevered with grip so immensely.

Shattered by the heavy downpour; he continued to walk.
Soaked in mud his bare feet through tremors and breeziness.
Proving his worth in every deed he shared.

Tears are dripping like a rain anew.
He can't even mirror his broken soul to renew.
Quenching his thoughts with his mighty pen;
just a clearer mind and humble heart will do.

Time will come, the agony will end. Uncertain to come just like a gift of alm. In realm, his desires will be done.
But only the supernatural can suffice the Psalm.

Altus